An aerial photograph of a tropical resort in the Maldives. The image shows a long, narrow pier extending from a small island with palm trees and lush greenery into the turquoise ocean. Along the pier, there are several overwater bungalows with dark roofs. In the distance, another row of similar bungalows is visible on a separate part of the reef. The sky is bright blue with scattered white clouds. The water transitions from a shallow, light turquoise near the shore to a deeper blue further out.
